Dearest Robert,

How are you nowadays? Let me hope you and your family are all fine.

I have written this letter to purposely advise you to study hard this year. When you work hard, you will always stand very high chances of getting better employment.

In most cases, when you have a good job, you will be capable of living a better standard together with your family members and close relatives.

In my opinion, I would love teaching as my best career because of Mr. Godfrey Male who was my teacher of English in Primary. Mr. Asiku Vincent has always helped me on how to study and become a teacher.

I hope to hear from you soon after receiving my letter.

Your best friend, Nelson.

RELATIVE PRONOUNS

Examples of relative pronouns;

- a) who
- b) whose
- c) whom
- d) which
- e) that

Relative pronouns are pronouns used to join relative clauses.

Relative clauses are sentences that show a relationship between the given subjects.

“Who”, “whose” and “whom” are used for people.

“Which” is used for other things.

“That” is used for both people and other things.

TYPES OF RELATIVE CLAUSES;

1. Defining relative clauses.
2. Non-defining relative clauses.
 - a) Relative clauses are made up of two parts i.e the main clause and the relative clause.
 - b) The first sentence is the main clause and the second sentence is the relative clause.
 - c) The relative clause can be a defining relative clause or a non-defining relative clause.

1. Defining relative clauses.

A defining relative clause is a sentence which defines the main clause whose subject is not clear.

Example;

1. A dog was knocked down (main clause).
- A dog was crossing the road. (relative clause).

Characteristics of defining relative clauses.

1. The subjects of the main clauses are not clear.
2. Both clauses are short.
3. When joining the two clauses, no commas are used.
4. When joining the two clauses, the relative pronoun comes immediately after the subject of the main clause.
5. The main clause is always the last part of the final answer.

Example;

2. The children are sick. The children were playing in mud.
- The children who were playing in mud are sick.

Lesson activity;

NON-DEFINING RELATIVE CLAUSES;

Non-defining relative clauses are sentences which don't define the subject but simply give more information about it.

Characteristics of non-defining relative clauses;

- a) The subjects of the main clauses are clear.
- b) The sentences are long.
- c) Commas are used when joining the two clauses.
- d) When joining the two clauses, a comma comes immediately after the subject, followed by a relative pronoun, then followed by the clause as the last part of the answer.

Examples;

1. Mukasa is my teacher. His father is a pilot.

- Mukasa, whose father is a pilot, is my teacher.
- 2. Mr. Wowoto was elected as a member of parliament. Mr. Wowoto displayed good leadership at the University.
- Mr. Wowoto, who displayed good leadership at the University, was elected as a member of parliament.
- 3. The preposition is mentioned once in the answer.
- 4. The man has gone to U.K. I work for him as a secretary.
- a) The man for whom I work as a secretary, has gone to U.K.
- b) The man whom I worked for as a secretary, has gone to U.K.

Lesson activity;

THE POSSESSIVE RELATIVE PRONOUNS;

1. “Whose” is the possessive pronoun used to show ownership or possession in relative clauses.
2. “Whose” replaces personal or adjective pronoun e.g. her, his, one’s, their, my, your, our, its or the names themselves.

Examples;

1. The girl was punished. Her dress was torn at the breasts.
- The girl, whose dress was torn at the breasts, was punished.
2. Ruth and I are crying. Our ball has been taken by Bwanika.
- Ruth and I, whose ball has been taken by Bwanika, are crying.
3. Appolo, is sick. Appolo’s books are lost.

Appolo, whose books are lost, is sick.

Lesson activity;

SEPARATING ALREADY JOINED SENTENCES USING “WHOSE” INTO TWO.

1. When separating sentences joined by “whose”, identify the main clause first with the main subject.
2. Identify relative clause second to begin with the correct adjective pronoun according to the subject given.
3. Finally drop the possessive relative pronoun “whose”. Example;

1. Wenger, whose team was beaten by Chelsea, is a good coach.

a) Wenger is a good coach. His team was beaten by Chelsea.

b) Wenger is a good coach. Wenger’s team was beaten by Chelsea. Lesson activity;

THE DIRECT AND INDIRECT / RERPORTED SPEECH

THE DIRECT SPEECH;

- The direct speech are the actual or real or original words of a speaker. -
The direct speech can also be your own report using your own words. -
The direct speech is made of two parts;- a) The speech tag or reporting part.
- b) The actual or real or original words used.
- These actual or real or original words must be between quotation marks or both open and close inverted commas.
- These quotation marks or inverted commas can be either single or double (' ' or " ").
- The direct speech is used when reporting matters in court, newspapers, books and many other writings of quotations.

REQUIREMENTS IN THE CORRECT SENTENCES;

1. A comma is used to separate the actual words of a speaker from the reporting part e.g. ;-
 - said
 - asked
 - told
 - requested
 - ordered
 - commanded
 - demanded etc

2. The quotation marks only enclose the actual speech or words but not the reporting part or speech tag.

Example;

- a) David said, "Go and tell Mary to come here."
3. The closing quotation marks are clearly placed away from the nearest punctuation mark in a sentence.

Example;

- b) "What a beautiful girl she is! He wondered.

POSITIONS OF THE SPEECH TAG IN CORRECT DIRECT SPEECH SENTENCES

- The speech tag or the reporting part in a correct direct speech sentence, has three positions;

- a) At the beginning of a sentence. Example;

1. James said, "Jamirah is a bad girl."

- b) At the end of a sentence.

2. "Jamirah is a bad girl." James said.

- c) In the middle of a sentence.

Example;

"Jamirah," said James, "is a bad girl".

NB:

- The positions of the speech tag help us when we are asked to punctuate direct speech tag sentences correctly.

Sentence practice;

THE INDIRECT OR REPORTED SPEECH

- This is when someone else reports for you but using your own words.
- The indirect or reported speech is made up of three parts. a) The speech tag or reporting part.
- b) The conjunction (joining word or connector)
- c) The said words in the past form. Example;
- 1. Mary said that Paul was a clever boy.
