Questions about it in full sentences.

The traffic police is one of the sections in police. This section is responsible for all road users and what takes place on the roads. The ladies and gentlemen who work in this organization are called traffic police officers.

Their main duty is to ensure that all road users use the road carefully and correctly in order to reach their destination safely. These officers ensure that the motorists and motorcyclists have driving licenses which show that they qualify to do that work.

They also ensure that there is no speeding and overloading of vehicles. In addition, a vehicle in good mechanical condition must be the only one to transport passengers. All safety measures such as tightening seatbelts and wearing helmets are fully done.

As soon as traffic is heavy on the road, these officers come to rescue. They ensure that vehicles are moving on effectively. This is at the junctions or crossroads where there are no traffic lights to control the traffic. The traffic police also help pedestrians to cross the road safely in case the road is busy or when there is no zebra crossing.

For proper guidance to the road users, the section has put up road signs which help the drivers and motorists by informing them about what they are to meet ahead of them. This helps them to reduce the speed at which they are travelling.

Therefore, the traffic police are very important in Uganda.

Parents are worried as the sun sets each day
The clock hands move very fast each day
The holiday shortens quickly and soon it is over
The holiday makers prepare to report to school

Roads leading to different schools
Pupils smartly dressed in different uniforms
Black shoes but with different socks
Belts resting in the waists and ties in the necks
Parents with their children enter the school
The gate is wide open like day
Welcome messages legibly written

"Happy to be at school again," reads everyone
The bursar busy with the paid-in bank slips
Teachers collecting all school requirements
Head teacher meet parents with fees excuses
The canteen attendant ready to sell all items
What a busy day!
